Dr. Robert Lustig, professor of pediatrics at the University of California at San Francisco, is the star of the video above. While he presents some material that's scientifically sound, he also makes enough errors to warrant a healthy dose of criticism. Online homework and grading tools for instructors and students that reinforce student learning through practice and instant feedback. I'm aiming to encourage people to think carefully about what he is telling them. I'm not out to discourage people from trying out any promising new ideas – what I want is to help people question what's out there for themselves.
