Many women over 60 are making transitions in our careers, family lives and homes. Part of this transition process might involve downsizing your home. If you think moving up in life means buying a bigger home, it's time to set the record straight. Most American families have plenty of room to downsize their home without cramping their style. "This is essential reading for anyone clearing out your own or a loved one's home. . . . invaluable." —The Wall Street Journal It's a rite of passage almost no one will escape: the difficult, emotional journey of downsizing your or your aging parents' home.
