Roy Ciampa, professor of New Testament, Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary “Pheme Perkins is renowned for her independence of mind and the focus and precision of her thinking. The Paideia series approaches each text in its final, canonical form, proceeding by sense units rather than word-by-word or verse-by-verse. The commentaries shed fresh light on the text while avoiding idiosyncratic readings and attend to theological meaning without presuming a specific theological stance in the reader. “The Paideia Commentaries on the New Testament series is designed to be used, in particular, by students and to provide them with a theological understanding of the text in its final form, placing it firmly in its ancient context, while addressing the interests of the contemporary readers. This first exponent of the type provides an excellent model. . . . A desire to be accessible and the ... This is the perfect commentary to have alongside your Bible as you read and study through the text of First Corinthians. Perkins' will guide, not dominate your study of the text. I highly recommend this volume along with the rest of the Paideia Commentaries on the New Testament.
