The LSWR N15 class was a British 2-cylinder 4-6-0 express passenger steam locomotive designed by Robert W. Urie. The class has a complex build history spanning three sub-classes and eight years of construction from 1919 to 1926. The SR N15X class or Remembrance class were a design of British 4-6-0 steam locomotives converted in 1934 by Richard Maunsell of the Southern Railway from the large LB&SCR L class 4-6-4 tank locomotives that had become redundant on the London-Brighton line following electrification. It was hoped that further service could be obtained from ...

Cloughton & Patriot 4-6-0s Locomotive Monographs No.3. G. Toms & R. J. Essery 124 pages Softback 2006. Whilst not as detailed as the "LMS Profile" series from Wild Swan, this is nonetheless a pretty comprehensive description and account of two classes of 4-6-0 locomotives the Cloughton being more or less the predecessor of the Patriot.
