The exam is comic look at the pressures put on young people by parents and teachers. Andrew, Chas and Bea are three candidates of mixed ability who find themselves holed up in the same exam hall waiting for their papers to arrive. As the wait lengthens, each has to survive a powerful barrage of PDF self doubt, parental pressure and adult incompetence. They must come to terms with themselves, their peers and parents - provoked and helped by 'Ex', the mysterious, disembodied voice of the exam. This was the school production at Granville School. I did try to get the actual film off the dvd but it wouldn't work, so I will try another time. The final production of a varied and successful drama year was a mid-year production of 'The Exam' by Andy Hamilton, writer of Outnumbered and Drop the Dead Donkey amongst other things. Focusing on the exam approaches of pupils and parents and the diverse pressures the exam-season brings, Hamilton uses the scenario to offer a young cast the chance to learn about playing and creating comedy and to give an excellent lesson in script-construction.
